Purpose of Memo

This memo provides a summary of the results and input from the flexible scheme analysis, list of the critical 25% roadway segments recommended to move forward with adaptation improvements, and prioritization schedule.

Project Intent and Description

As part of the Monroe County (County) Roadway Vulnerability Analysis and Capital project, the roadways maintained by the County will be evaluated to develop a long-term roads adaptation plan based on design criteria, Sea Level Rise (SLR) projections, adaptation methodology, policy/financing evaluation, and public/stakeholder outreach. The primary objective of the project is to analyze the impacts of current and projected levels of SLR on all County maintained roads and to develop an implementation plan and timeline to adapt roads for SLR. The results will be used to determine new policy considerations and design criteria for what acceptable levels of service should be.

Design Approach

There are over 311 miles of County maintained roadways spread throughout over 1,200 locations. The roadway segments were sometimes even further broken into smaller segments defining specific blocks or limits divided by a bridge or a natural area. Therefore, there were a total of 2,383 roadway segments that were evaluated. Modeling was developed in the Spatial Modelbuilder environment of Desktop ArcGIS 10.6.1 using the raster overlay tools in the Spatial Analyst extension. The Vulnerability assessment consisted on a 2-tier process that first evaluated the vulnerability or at-risk of the roadway segments and then using the GIS model evaluated the criticality of the roadways affected based on a variety of engineering, environmental, cultural and emergency response factors, and then assigned a Vulnerability Score to each roadway segment.

The Vulnerability Score assigned to each roadway segment becomes a factor in the Criticality Analysis. The Vulnerability Scoring for the year 2045 revealed that there are highly vulnerable roadway segments all throughout the County. It is important to note that the vulnerability analysis provides specific distinction on which roadways are more exposed to evaluation factors yielding a list based on how the structural integrity of the roadway segments are compromised. The vulnerability analysis has enabled the identification of the most vulnerable areas and when it can be expected for them to reach a critical vulnerable state.

The criticality analysis will not change or affect the results of the vulnerability analysis, rather, the vulnerability scores become a factor of the criticality analysis and the results of the criticality analysis becomes the tool to be used in the prioritization exercise to identify the initial critical 25% of the roadway segments that are to be further evaluated and recommended to be addressed first.

Additionally, modeling was conducted that compared the projected water elevations against the existing roadway surface elevations for the NOAA 2017 Intermediate-High SLR projections and corresponding King Tide Predictions for 2025, 2030, 2035, 2040, 2045, 2060, and 2100, respectively.

CRITICALITY ASSESSMENT AND PRIORITIZATION

While the Vulnerability Assessment determined the extent to which each asset is at risk from new conditions arising from climate change, the Criticality Assessment was a community-based assessment of the importance of each infrastructure asset. The following steps occurred during the Criticality Assessment:

1. Prepare List of Criticality Factors – The team identified a short list (5 – 10) of factors that would affect the relative importance of an infrastructure asset. For example, all else being equal, a fire hydrant next to a hospital is more critical to the community than a fire hydrant located next to an empty lot. The Criticality Factors identified for the MCRVS project were as follows:
  - a. Number of Residential Units Per Road Segment
  - b. Roadways Associated With Critical Facilities (Police, Fire, Hospital)
  - c. Non-Residential Parcel Building Size
  - d. T&E and Focus Species Values Associated With Road Segment
  - e. Wetlands Associated With Road Segment
  - f. Roadway Functional Class and Evacuation Routes
2. Rank Roadway Criticality – Each roadway segment was assigned a score from 1 (Low Criticality) to 5 (High Criticality) for each of the Criticality Factors. In summary:
  - a. Number of Residential Units Per Road Segment –GIS was used to summarize the number of residential units served by each roadway segment as a measure of the number of homes dependent on the road. The distribution was classified by Natural Breaks to determine what values should be used to rate each roadway segment from Very Low Criticality (1) to Very High Criticality (5).
  - b. Roadways Associated with Critical Facilities (Police, Fire, Hospital) – The point locations of Critical Facilities were provided by Monroe County. Network Analysis generated isochronal drive-time polygons ranging from 1 minute to 4 minutes around each Critical Facility to determine which roadway segments were most important in providing access to the Critical Facilities. For example, roads within the 1-minute drive time include those necessary to gain access to the facility, and therefore are the most critical. Those road segments would be assigned a value of 5 (Very High Criticality). Conversely, those roadways more than 4-minutes driving distance away from a Critical Facility were the least important to obtaining access. Note that use of the 4-minute cutoff for the Very Low Criticality might be peculiar to the Florida Keys, where travel times beyond 4 minutes inevitably led to the Overseas Highway (US-1) which connects the islands of the Keys. In terrestrial settings with more travel options available in all directions a larger maximum drive-time might be appropriate.

Prioritization

- c. Non-Residential Parcel Building Size – All else being equal, roadways that served substantial non-residential (i.e., commercial, industrial, government or institutional) buildings had greater economic value to the community than those with little or no non-residential use. This factor used the total “livable area” of non-residential buildings as a proxy for the community value of those facilities. Roadway segments were ranked according to the square footage of building area, from less than 5,000 square feet for Very Low Criticality (1) to more than 150,000 square feet for Very High Criticality (5).
  - d. T&E and Focus Species Values Associated with Road Segment – Mitigating SLR by raising the road surface may result in loss of adjacent wildlife habitat. Consequently, those road segments with lower potential involvement with adjacent T&E or Focus Species habitat were preferable. Each roadway segment was scored according to how many protected species are associated with the adjacent habitat from zero (Very High Criticality) to more than four (Very Low Criticality).
  - e. Wetlands Associated with Road Segment – Road segments with a lower potential for wetland impacts were higher priority for SLR mitigation than those with large wetland impacts. Consequently, Very High Criticality (5) road segments had zero adjacent wetland involvement, while road segments with wetlands occupying more than 60% of the adjacent area were rated Very Low Criticality (1).
  - f. Roadway Functional Class and Evacuation Routes – This factor combined two roadway characteristics. First, any road that was an Evacuation Route was rated as Very High Criticality (5), regardless of its functional class. Other roads were rated from High Criticality (4) for a Functional Class of Principal or Minor Arterials, down to Very Low Criticality (1) for Local Roads.
3. Calculate Combined Priority Score - The ArcGIS Weighted Sum tool computed the Priority Rank for each raster cell on the roadway surface based on the values of the various Criticality Factors (Figure 1) and the previously computed Vulnerability Score:
    - a. Vulnerability Score – The combined Vulnerability Rank computed by the Weighted Overlay step was input to the Prioritization model with a high weight. This ensured that the identification of roadways at high risk of SLR impacts would receive the greatest priority in the assessment.
    - b. County Staff Input to Weighting – The initial baseline Prioritization model gave the Vulnerability Score a 20% weight and all other factors a 10% weight. Following inspection of the results of that baseline model, the County staff called for greater weight for the factors of most concern to the Florida Keys community, specifically residential units and Critical Facilities. This coordination occurred during weekly calls between August and September of 2020.

As with the Vulnerability Assessment, the Criticality Assessment output is affected by the weight of the factors and 4 runs were again conducted, each time placing emphasis on different factors, until the recommended Criticality factors weights were reached. Figure 2 shows weights for each one of the 4 Criticality Assessment runs conducted during the coordination with the County.

Prioritization

The output from the Prioritization model (Figure 1) assigned a Priority Score to all County roadway surfaces. In most cases, a single roadway segment would have various Priority Scores assigned to various parts of its length. In order to generate a rank-order list of roads for the purposes of selecting the initial critical 25% for mitigation design, each road segment needs to be assigned a single overall Priority Score. The Priority by Road Segment model (Figure 4) converted the data and used the ArcGIS Identity tool to assign Priority values to the parts of each roadway segment centerline that overlay different Priority Score values. Summary statistics were then used to calculate the weighted average of the various Priority Score values along the length of each road segment centerline to generate a single Priority Score for each road segment. The tabular data for the road centerline layer was exported to CSV format and imported to Excel for use in identifying the initial critical 25% roadway segments for mitigation design (Figure 5).

Prioritization

Further analysis of the Preliminary Prioritization scoring output highlights the need for slight modification to the list of the top 25%, as it includes roadway segments that although extremely vulnerable, do not service any or more than a couple residential units, or have been previously closed to traffic by the County as a result of current flooding impacts and could be moved down the list, to be addressed or reevaluated later after the initial 25%. Figure 5 shows examples of these scenarios.

In addition to the previously described scenario, the preliminary scoring also leaves out certain road segments that have not received a high enough Priority score to be included in the top 25%, however, these are segments which the County has already identified as very vulnerable and in need to be placed in the 25%, an example of this is shown in Figure 6. These special cases will be analyzed and decided upon on an individual basis to ensure the integrity of the Prioritization model tool and process is not compromised.

Upper Sugarloaf Key – Johnson Road

The final output list serves as an initial starting point for which additional input from the County to be considered with respect to expanding roadway segment limits or including additional adjacent roadway segments that compose a vulnerable area and opportunity for a logical project opportunity. Refer to attached Criticality Analysis list for the initial critical 25% road segments to be evaluated for conceptual design improvements in the next phase of the study.

ADDITIONAL EVALUATION

A third category of evaluation factors that correspond to the mitigation alternatives and the community impacts will be conducted after the completion of the Concept Development for the capital plan. It will consider the following factors.

- a. Availability of Funding Local, State, Federal
- b. Community Acceptance
- c. Potential for Unintended Consequences (impacts to roadway and offsite drainage, loss of access to adjacent properties)
- d. Potential to Relocate Critical Facilities Served
- e. Risk Potential to First Responders (Police, Fire, Postal Service, O&M Crews)
- f. Land Use Development Standards - Impact to Future Development or Redevelopment
- g. Roadway Function for Transportation Routes (Bus, Commuter, Biking, Walking)
- h. Accessibility for Construction Staging and Execution
- i. Right-of-way impacts

Conclusions

The Prioritization exercise assigned a Priority Score to each roadway segment and provided a list ranking them from most to least urgent based on the criticality factors used. This list revealed that the roadway segments that require most immediate attention are not all within one area of Monroe County but are spread throughout the extent of the study limits. Some of the areas included in the top 25% include well-known areas of concern in Big Pine Key, Duck Key, and Key Largo. It is important to note, that although the prioritization names the top 25% of roadways as priority, it does not mean the remaining will not be considered for improvements by the County in the future.

The intent of the Prioritization exercise is to ensure that access to critical facilities is not interrupted, as well as addressing areas that will suffer from the SLR impacts sooner than others. The results of the Prioritization exercise were presented to the Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) during a workshop on October 18th, 2020. During this workshop the BOCC was given a presentation with a detailed description of the vulnerability and criticality methodology developed, after which the BOCC approved of the methodology and instructed County staff and study team to move forward and proceed to the next phase of the project.
